Section 6. Co-producer's contributions to cost of production (finance plan)

Agreements between companies providing the finance and the co-producer(s) should generally reflect the apportionment given below.

APPLYING FOR PROVISIONAL STATUS Before commencement of principal photography, we will make a provisional assessment of how much each co-producer pays towards the costs of production by reviewing the amount of finance raised by each co-producer. In the table below provide a breakdown of the whole amount of finance brought by each co-producer to the cost of production. In cases where co-producers share common sources of finance, such as a contribution paid into a single production account, such monies should still be shown as channelled through at least one of the co-producers.		APPLYING FOR FINAL CO-PRODUCTION STATUS After completion of the film, we will need to know how much each co-producer has actually paid towards the costs of production. Please show in the final column how much was the producer's financial contribution. These figures will need to be audited for final status.

Section 7. Budget expenditure

What to submit for budget expenditure

The full budget topsheet should be presented as per the Co-Production Split Budget template which accompanies this application form on the IFB website http://www.irishfilmboard.ie/financing_your_film/European_CoProduction/9
Please note that no form other than the template provided will be accepted for this section.

Background to creative contribution – How to split the budget

When you submit the application, budgets should always be split to show separately:

- Non co-producing countries

Expenditure in making the film outside any of the co-producing countries and on non-qualifying personnel: i.e. spend on the personnel of any non co-producing countries and spend in any non co-producing country (such as in countries used for location filming).

- The expenditure representing in turn each co-producing country's creative contribution

i.e. on it's elements and on labour costs of it's national's residents (whether they are working in the co-producing country itself or not); for example, in an Irish/UK co-production, a UK DOP working in Ireland is deemed to be Irish expenditure for the purposes of Section 481, but UK co-producers creative contribution for the purposes of this co-production application.

Section 8. Shooting & facilities

Where exact addresses cannot be given, it will be sufficient to indicate in which country work is to be located.

Section 9. Personnel involved in making the film

Where names cannot be given for the key roles as requested, Bord Scannán na hÉireann/the Irish Film Board will be prepared, initially, to accept the number of persons involved and their nationalities. However, it is essential that at least reasonably accurate estimates of the number and nationalities of the persons listed below be provided in order for an assessment for provisional co-production status to be made. Confirmation will be sought for final co-production status.

NOTE ABOUT ANIMATION FILMS

In the case of an animation film, we still require the fullest possible details to be entered. For instance, voice-over artists may be entered as leading artists and featured artists etc. Generally, accurate information should be entered where possible, even if one person performed more than one of the roles listed on the form. For example, for director of photography, you may put someone who supervised the taking of photographs or similar role, or may wish to amend the application form to show the correct job title for an individual.
